RUSSIAN FLEET SWEEPS THE SEA

Much Alarm Felt for Vessels Bound for the East

SHIP WENT TO BOTTOM

It was the Knight Commander—The Foreign Office Gives Instructions for Thorough Investigation.

COMMANDER TELLS OF INCIDENT.

YOKOHAMA July 26.—Captain Brown, of the steamship Tsinan, which brought the crew of the steamer Knight Commander into port Monday, says that the Knights Commander met three Russians warships at 7:30 o'clock Saturday morning off the province of Izu. The Russian officers who boarded the Knight Commander took her captain back with them and ordered the crew of the Knight Commander to come on board one of the Russian warship within ten minutes. The Russians then sank the Knight Commander.

At three o'clock in the afternoon the Russian vessels met the Tsinan and transferred the crew of the Knight Commander to this vessel. An Indian boatswain of the Knights Commander says the Russians boasted that, besides sinking the Knight Commander and halting the Tsinan, they had sunk two small Japanese vessels, and that before meeting the Knight Commander they had captured a German steamer, believed to be the Arabia, belonging to the Hamburg American line and the Cheltenham, a British vessel. The Russians said they had plenty of coal. Before leaving the Tsinan, Captain Brown was ordered to blow off steam and not to move his vessel until the Russians had disappeared over the horizon. When last seen, at 7 o'clock in the evening, the Russian warships were steaming in a southeasterly direction, toward the mouth of Tokio bay.

FEARS FOR OTHER SHIPS

The American Trading company, agents at Yokohama, for the Knight Commander, deny that the vessel had any contraband on board, according to her manifest.

The three Russian warships which sank the Knight Commander are reported by Captain Brown to be crowded with men. Their bottoms are foul and they look grim and ugly. The Russian vessels are thought to be short of prize crews.

Americans are anxious concerning the possible fate of the Korea, belonging to the Pacific Mail Steamship company, and the American steamer Shawmut, which left Puget Sound on July 16 for Hong Kong. The Yokohama agent of the Pacific Mail S. S., company cabled a warning to the Korea at Midway Island. It is not known whether either of these steamers carry contraband.

The sinking of the Knight Commander without a trial is regarded as an unwarranted act, affording grounds for apprehension as to the treatment by the Russians of other neutral vessels.

Death of a Former Bellefonter.

George W. Miller, at his home, 1106 Twentieth avenue, Friday evening at 5.30 of dysentery. He was born at Milesburg, Centre county, July 4, 1842, living at that place the greater part of his early years. When the Civil war broke out he enlisted in Company A. 49th regiment Pennsylvania Volunteers and served three years and nine months in the service of his country. The deceased was twice married, his first wife, Anna Rachel Price, of Warriorsmark, dying 21 years ago. His wife and two children, John Charles and Josephine, at home, survive him. He was a member of Bellwood Post 466, Grand Army of the Republic, and also for several years was a member of the Salvation Army of that city. Funeral services were held Monday morning at 10. Interment in Fairview cemetery.—Altoona Times.

What the Bellefonte Academy Means to the Town's Business Interests.

[Communicated.]

TO THE EDITOR OF THE REPUBLICAN

Your article in last weeks issue of the REPUBLICAN was interesting from an historical standpoint and sufficient reason why the Bellefonte Academy should be refitted in a manner befitting its past traditions. It is well enough that the people of Bellefonte and the alumni of this celebrated institution of learning should feel properly conscious of its famous record, but those who are expected to contribute toward the future upbuilding and survival of the Academy should have some knowledge of what the existence of this corporation means to this community from the selfish standpoint of dollars and cents.

During the past few years the Academy has been in charge of James R. Hughes, who has developed the educational standing to a very high mark. In the carrying out of this work, Mr. Hughes has made such a reputation for the institution that it has attracted a large number of pupils from all parts of the country. An enlarged corps of instructors and at least twenty five boarders are the present result from his management.

At the lowest estimate the amount of money spent in Bellefonte, solely by reason of these additions to its temporary residents, exceeds fifteen thousand dollars per year. It has always been the aim of the Academy authorities to encourage their scholars to purchase all supplies in this town and, wherever it is possible, to give the home industries the benefit of their custom.

For a comparatively small amount, in addition to the money to be received from the insurance companies, the main building can be enlarged and equipped in such a way as to attract and accommodate double the number of students from out of town. With such an increase in the student body the teaching force would also be added to and the money expended by them in the town swelled to a corresponding amount.

If a substantial sum could be raised at this time to enlarge, improve and beautify the grounds surrounding the old buildings, in addition to increasing the capacity of the buildings themselves, would not subscriptions to such a fund be good investments for the business interests of this town? As a business proposition an enlarged Academy would be of just as much benefit to Bellefonte citizens as a new industry of any nature, even if we do not consider the great importance to the community at large of the increased intellectual force at work in this institution.

MRS. N. A. CRAIG DEAD.

A Well Known Resident of State College Succumbs to Dropsy and Heart Trouble.

Mrs. Nancy A. Craig died Wednesday July 20 at 3 o'clock at her home in State College of dropsy or heart trouble. She had been ill since last fall, being abed most of that time, and her lot in life seemed hard indeed.

Preliminary funeral services were held at 9 o'clock Saturday morning at the house, followed by services at 10 o'clock at Lot Kimport's or the Lutheran church in Boalsburg. Interment in the Boalsburg cemetery, Rev. C. T. Aikens officiating.

Mrs. Craig was 70 years old on the 30th of May. Her maiden name was Nancy Shirk. Her first husband was John Herman, who has been dead 43 years. Later she married R. R. Craig of Pine Grove Mills. Together they kept the St. Elmo Hotel at that place for about ten years. Her second husband dying, she continued to support herself by keeping a millinery store in Pine Grove Mills. Some fifteen years ago she came to State College and commenced keeping students, an occupation to which she held until incapacitated by her recent illness. Thus it will be seen that she was a woman very well known in these parts.

She was also a devoted member of the Lutheran church, and a lady in whose home it was a pleasure to be. She was respected and loved by all who knew her.

She leaves besides a host of friends to mourn her loss a brother, William Shirk of Punxsutawney, and a sister, Mrs. Lot Kimport of Boalsburg, also three children, Mrs. J. N. Everts of Pine Grove Mills, Robert Herman of Tionesta, and Jacob Herman of Lemont.

—Frank Eberts, a well known residen of Woodland, died Wednesday July 20 of heart trouble. He was aged about 42 years and is survived by a widow and two sons, two brothers, J. W. Eberts, of Clearfield, and James A. Eberts, of Martha Furnace, this county, and one sister, Mrs. Lizzie Hill, of Barnesboro.

RUSSIAN MEET DISASTER

Kiaotung Taken After Hard Fight.

KUROKI'S ONSLAUGHTER

At Kiao-Tung Was a Bloody Encounter—Troops Fought at the Bayonet Point—Japs Lost 424 Men and Russians 1000.

JAPS CREMATING RUSSIAN DEAD.

TOKIO, July 23.—General Kuroki, after a severe fight, occupied Kiaotung on July 19. The place had been fortified by the Russians, who defended it stoutly. In the fighting General Kuroki's troops drove the Russians from their strongly fortified position on the Chi river, which is northwest of Motion pass, and east of Anping, inflicting upon the enemy more serious losses than they sustained themselves. The fight began on the 18th and ended on the 19th. The Japanese lost 424 men in killed and wounded. The Russian losses are estimated at 1,000.

General Kuroki began his advance early in the morning of the 18th. He uncovered and followed the enemy along the Chi river. The Russians seemed to be retiring to the northward, when suddenly two battalions with eight guns turned and attacked the Japanese advanced guard vigorously. At this point the Japanese suffered before relief came, one company losing all its officers. At a late hour in the afternoon the Russian's position was developed. They occupied an eminence on the banks of the Chi. This river guarded their left flank and high precipies protected the Russians on the right. The only approach to their position was through a narrow defile. The fighting continued until dark, when the Japanese forces bivouacked. The Russians made two counter attacks, but were repulsed in each case.

The Japanese renewed the attack at midnight, posting their artillery in the valley below and on the high ground to the south of the Russian position. The main Japanese body was assigned to attack the Russian centre; a small detachment was sent towards the river flank and another to watch the enemy's left flank. After these positions had been taken, the fighting ceased for a time, but it was resumed at dawn. The Russians had thirty-two guns in action and they vigorously shelled the Japanese. To this fire the Japanese replied and the bombardment lasted for four hours.

During the time the Japanese infantry moved forward, the flankers had scaled the heights on the Russian right by 3 o'clock in the afternoon, at which hour the main force was ordered to storm the Russian centre. The Japanese artillery protected this movement splendidly, but the infantry met with a severe fire and lost heavily in gaining the heights.

The final successful charge was delivered at half past 5 in the afternoon. The Japanese succeeded in partially cutting off the Russians retreat and this soon becomes a rout. The enemy went in two directions to the northward and to the eastward.

The Russian forces engaged included, in addition to the artillery, seven battalions of infantry and a regiment of Cossacks. The enemy left 130 dead and 600 rifles on the field. Prisoners taken estimated the Russian losses at 1,000. The Japanese lost one officer and fifty-four men killed and eighteen officers and 351 men wounded.

On July 19, Japanese forces attacked a battalion of infantry and a thousand cavalry, who occupied Che-Chiato, to the northward of Shaotientszu. After four hours of fighting the Russians retired across the Taitsu river. In this engagement the Japanese had seventeen wounded men.

Buggy Capsized at Salona.

As two ladies and a little girl were driving a blind horse attached to a buggy through Salona Wednesday morning, the horse took fright at the report from a blast in the stone quarries, quickly whirled around and threw the occupants to the ground, injuring the little girl and one of the ladies. After getting straightened out they all continued their journey.

HOME FROM ST LOUIS.

Miss Mary E. Penney, Winner of the Republicans World's Fair Trip—She Had a Splendid Time.

Miss Mary E. Penney was in Bellefonte Saturday on her way home from attending the great World's Fair at St. Louis. With her were Postmaster J. I. Yarnell and wife, of Snow Shoe, and Miss Jennie Lucas, of Moshannon. They report that the trip passed off very successfully and that the fair is the greatest event of modern times.

On Tuesday we received the following letter from Miss Penney.

MR TUTEN AND SUPPORTERS OF THE CONTEST,

DEAR FRIENDS:—

Having but recently returned from the trip to the World's Fair, at St. Louis, I take this opportunity to again thank Mr. Tuten for his generous offer and the friends for their loyal support.

My visit to this great Exposition was most thoroughly enjoyed and was a means of much pleasure and profit.

The wonders of the Exposition cannot be over estimated, and a visit to this "Ivory City" will do much to broaden and deepen one's knowledge.

There you have an opportunity of seeing not only the great achievements of our own nation, but also of the other great nations.

Again I extend my heartfelt gratitude to those who labored so arduously in my behalf, and to Mr. Tuten for so generously fulfilling his part of the agreement.

Very Cordially Yours
MARY E. PENNEY

AWAKE BELLEFONTE.

An Opportunity the Citizens Should Grasp.

An effort is being made by a few of the parties formerly interested in the Glass Co. here to rebuild and start the works again. Many communications have come to some of the old workers, from outside glass workers, wanting to start a co-operative factory here. They being some who had formerly worked here and who liked the town for a healthy, home living place, and others who had heard of its fame for pure water and health would like to come here to live and invest their small savings and their labor in a co-operative factory. It is thought possible enough outside funds could be raised that way, taken in conjunction with the material, land etc., of the old company on hand that but fifteen to twenty thousand additional would be necessary to put the plant into operation. Many of the letters came to Philip Garbrick making the offers named above. It would be well for some of the merchants and property owners of the town to look into the matter and no doubt with a little enthusiasm on part of a few, the plant could become an established fact, a money making reality, which the borough so sadly needs today. It is an established fact the old factory distributed for several years many thousand of dollars a year among our people, the business men getting it first but ultimately everybody got an interest and all on a very small outlay the first year. Those who have benefitted in the past should put their shoulders to the wheel now and push.

It is an unconcealed fact that there is a drowsiness, a lethargy stealing over our citizens in general, slowly but surely drawing its net until in a few short years the town will be so under the deadly influence that an awakening will hardly be possible for several decades. So citizens arouse and bestir yourselves and make our pretty little city of which we are so proud worthy of its former name of BUSTLE.

Arouse! Awake! Get out of the stupor.

RUNAWAY AT CAMP QUAY

Woman Sightseer Dragged to Her Death.

HORRES TOOK FRIGHT

At an Automobile—Several of the Soldiers Alleged to Have Attempted to wreck a Trolley Car.

INCIDENTS OF DAY ON TENTED FIELD

GETTYSBURG, July, 25.—Despite the heavy rain which fell all night up to noon, there were many visitors in camp M. S. Quay Sunday. The day was marked by one fatal accident. A team of horses attached to a carriage in which were Mrs. Edna Osborne, aged 60 years, of Carlisle, her daughter, Marion, and Miss Carrie Stallsmith, of Gettysburg became frightened by a runaway passing automobile owned by Lieutenant Colonel Henry C. Dexter, of Allentown, a member of the Governor's staff. The horses ran away and Mrs. Osborne was thrown out of the vehicle and dragged about three hundred feet. She was rescued by several guardsmen and taken to the Stallsmith home in the Thirteenth Regiment ambulance. Two regimental surgeons attended her, but she died in a half hour. Among her injuries she received a crushed skull. The runaway caused several other horses to become unmanageable, and several other persons were slightly injured and treated in the regimental hospitals.

An attempt was made Saturday night, it is alleged by several militiamen to wreck a crowded trolley car on the Emmittsburg road. The car was going rapidly down hill near the Cordori farm barn, where Pickett's charge was split, when the motorman discovered a fence rail lying across the rail at the curve. He quickly applied his brakes and slowed the speed of the car before it struck the obstruction. The provost marshall is investigating the affair.

The dull routine of a Sunday in camp was gone through without special incident. Nearly all the regiments held religious services. Late in the afternoon General Schall ordered out his brigade (the First) comprising Philadelphia troops, for review. The review took place on the parade ground below Seminary Ridge, and was watched by Major General Miller, part of his staff, and Colonel James Regan, of the Ninth U. S. Infantry.

Governor Pennypacker, who slept in camp Saturday night, was up with reveille, which was sounded at 5:30 a. m. Despite the rain he took a drive through the camp and also inspected monuments on the battlefield. He attended services at the Gettysburg Presbyterian church, accompanied by Colonels Penney and Moddy, of the division staff.

The general health of the troops is good.

DRAWN TO KILL THE KING.

A Berwick Italian Selected But His Courage Failed Him.

The Bloomsburg Press tells the following: If the stories told by a number of Italians now employed on the sewer can be relied upon, there is in Berwick an anarchist who was among the several drawn by lot to kill King Humbert of Italy several years ago. The Italians told the story to Sewer Inspector Gus Learn and frequently point out the man to him. The man, they state, was a member of the anarchist body in New York when he was drawn upon to assassinate the king. When the day came to sail for Italy, however, his nerve failed him and as the party were boarding at New York for Naples, Italy, he deserted them. He was at once put out of the society branded as a coward and in a manner known only to the society, it became known wherever he went. The Italians shun him and he goes about as a lost man, and appears at times demented. The Italians, not anarchists—and there is a very small number, comparatively, that are such—shun him for being an anarchist, while his society will not take him back, so that he wanders about continually. About a year ago he was employed at the steel plant, but has since had little employment and the greater part of the time has been in West Berwick.

A BOY BURGLAR.

Earl Freeman, Age 13, Under Arrest for Stealing.

Earl Freeman, a young colored boy 13 years of age, was arrested Tuesday morning on the charge of robbing Montgomery & Company's clothing store. He was taken before Squire Keichline by County Detective Rightnour, who made the arrest, and at the the hearing which ensued, Freeman pleaded guilty and told where a part of the stolen property was located. Squire Keichline committed Freeman to jail to await a further investigation. Freeman confessed to having entered the store on three different occasions. Among the articles recovered were three base balls, a catchers mask, a three dollar base ball catcher's glove, and some bats. He gained an entrance through a cellar window in the rear of the store by breaking out a narrow pane of glass.

Mr. Frank Montgomery does not know exactly how much was stolen but says that the thieving has been going on for sometime. What led them to suspect Freeman was that on Saturday he presented three premium cards which were punched out amounting to 845 and demanded a suit of clothes as a premium on same. As none of his family had purchased anything from the store Mr. Montgomery became suspicious and refused to give Freeman the suit and began an investigation. Monday night about 8 o'clock he entered the store and later when charged by Clyde Smith, the head clerk at Montgomery's, with having done so broke down and acknowledged his guilt. On one of his trips to the store he had secured the premium cards and with the store punch had punched out the figures leaving the punch in the store.

This is the same lad who broke into Henry Brown's repair shop and stole several revolvers and musical instruments about six months ago.

MEETING OF PRESBYTERY.

Adjourned Session Held in Reedsville Church on Thursday.

The presbytery of Huntingdon met in the Presbyterian church of Reedsville on Thursday last according to adjournment, and was constituted with prayer by the Rev. D. K. Freeman, D. D., the last moderator present.

The Rev. Clarence E. Hills was received from the presbytery of Allegheny, and after the usual examination his name was ordered to be enrolled. A call was presented from the West-minister church of Mifflintown for the pastoral services of the Rev. Clarence E. Hills, promising him $1,200 per annum in monthly payments, the free use of the parsonage and a vacation of one month per annum. The call was found in order and placed in the hands of Mr. Hills, by whom it was accepted. The following committee was appointed to install him over the Westminster church on Wednesday, July 27, at 8 o'clock p. m.: Rev. Dr. William Laurie to preside and preach the sermon; the Rev. A. F. Walker to charge the pastor and the Rev. R. M. Campbell to charge the people.

The call by the church of East Kishacoquillas for the pastoral service of W. E. Brooks was presented, found in order and placed in the hands of Mr. Brooks, by whom it was accepted. The way being found clear for the ordination of W. E. Brooks, the sermon was preached by Rev. W. L. Mudge. After the usual statement by the presiding officer, the Rev. J. H. Mathers, Mr. Brooks was solemnly set apart to the work of the gospel ministry by prayer and the laying on of hands of the presbytery. The charge was then given to the pastor by Dr. Mathers and the charge to the people by Dr. Laurie. The pastorial relation was then said to be fully constituted.

The presbytery will meet next at Curwensville in October.

Married.

At the United Evangelical Parsonage Howard Pa., on Wednesday morning July 20th by Rev. D. A. Artman, Mr. Clarence E. Poorman of Romola, Pa., and Anna A., the accomplished daughter of Thomas P. Beightol of Walker, Pa., were united in the holy bonds of wedlock. Both these young people are highly esteemed by their many friends who all join in wishing them a happy and safe journey "O'er Life Sea."

The Filigree Ball

By ANNA KATHARINE GREEN,

Author of "The Mystery of Agatha Webb," "Lost Man's Lane," Etc.

Copyright, 1903, by the Bobbs-Merrill Company

"So! so!" thought I. "This is no fool's job; some one is in the house."

I had provided myself with an ordinary pocket lantern, and, when I had convinced Hibbard that I fully meant to enter the house and discover for myself who had taken advantage of the popular prejudice against it to make a secret refuge or rendezvous of its decayed old rooms, I took out this lantern and held it in readiness.

"We may strike a hornet's nest," I explained to Hibbard, whose feet seemed very heavy even for a man of his size. "But I'm going in and so are you. Only, let me suggest first that we take off our shoes. We can hide them in these bushes."

"I always catch cold when I walk barefooted," mumbled my brave companion; but receiving no reply, he drew off his shoes and dropped them beside mine in the cluster of stark bushes which figure so prominently in the newspaper illustrations that have lately appeared. Then he took out his revolver, and, cocking it, stood waiting, while I gave a cautious push to the door.

Darkness! Silence!

Rather had I confronted a light and heard some noise, even if it had been the ominous click to which we are so well accustomed. Hibbard seemed to share my feelings, though from an entirely different cause.

"Pistols and lanterns are no good here," he grumbled. "What we want at this blessed minute is a priest with a sprinkling of holy water; and I for one"—

He was actually sliding off.

With a smothered oath I drew him back.

"See here!" I cried, "you're not a babe in arms. Come on or— Well, what now?"

He had clinched my arm and was pointing to the door which was slowly swaying to behind us.

"Notice that," he whispered. "No key in the lock! Men use keys, but"—

My patience could stand no more. With a shake I rid myself of his clutch, muttering:

"There, go! You're too much of a ——— for me. I'm in for it alone." And in proof of my determination I turned the slide of the lantern and flashed the light through the house.

The effect was ghostly; but while the fellow at my side breathed hard, he did not take advantage of my words to make his escape, as I half expected him to. The truth is, I was startled myself, but I was able to hide the fact and to whisper back to him fiercely:

"Hush!"

I had just heard something.

For a moment we stood breathless, but as the sound was not repeated I concluded that it was the creaking of that faraway shutter. Certainly there was nothing moving near us.

"Shall we go upstairs?" whispered Hibbard.

"Not till we have made sure that all is right down here."

A door stood slightly ajar on our left.

Pushing it open, we looked in. A well furnished parlor was before us.

"Here's where the wedding took place," remarked Hibbard, straining his head over my shoulder.

There were signs of this wedding on every side. Walls and ceilings had been hung with garlands, and these still clung to the mantelpiece and over and around the various doorways. The clock occupying the center of the mantelpiece alone gave evidence of life. It had been wound for the wedding and had not yet run down. Its tick-tick came faint enough, however, through the darkness, as if it, too, had lost heart and would soon lapse into the deadly quiet of its ghostly surroundings.

"It's—it's funeral-like," chattered Hibbard.

He was right; I felt as if I were shutting the lid of a coffin when I finally closed the door.

Our next steps took us into the rear, where we found little to detain us, and then, with a certain dread fully justified by the event, we made for the door defined by the two Corinthian columns.

It was ajar like the rest, and, call me coward or call me fool—I have called Hibbard both, you will remember—I found that it cost me an effort to lay my hand on its mahogany panels. Danger, if danger there was, lurked here, and while I had never known myself to quail before any ordinary antagonist, I, like others of my kind, have no especial fondness for unseen and mysterious perils.

Hibbard, who up to this point had followed me almost too closely, now accorded me all the room that was necessary. It was with a sense of entering alone upon the scene that I finally thrust wide the door and crossed the threshold of this redoubtable room where, but two short weeks before, a fresh victim had been added to the list of those who had by some unheard of, unimaginable means found their death within its recesses.

My first glance showed me little save the ponderous outlines of an old settle, which jutted from the corner of the fireplace half way out into the room. As it was seemingly from this seat that the men, who at various times had been found lying here, had fallen to their doom, a thrill passed over me as I noted its unwieldy bulk and the deep shadow it threw on the ancient and dishonored hearthstone. To escape the ghastly memories it evoked and also to satisfy myself that the room was really as empty as it seemed, I took another step forward. This caused the light from the lantern I carried to spread beyond the point on which it had hitherto been so effectively concentrated, but the result was to emphasize rather than detract from the extreme desolation of the great room. The settle was a fixture, as I afterward found, and was almost the only article of furniture to be seen on the wide expanse of uncarpeted floor. There was a table or two in hiding somewhere amid the shadows at the other end from where I stood, and possibly some kind of stool or settee, but the general impression made upon me was that of a completely dismantled place given over to moth and rust.

The elegance of the heavily stuccoed ceiling, admitted to be one of the finest specimens of its kind in Washington, as well as the richness of the carvings ornamenting the mantel of Italian marble rising above the accursed hearthstone, only served to make more evident the extreme neglect into which the rest of the room had sunk. Being anything but anxious to subject myself further to its unhappy influence and quite convinced that the place was indeed as empty as it looked, I turned to leave when my eyes fell upon something so unexpected and so extraordinary, seen as it was under the influence of the old tragedies with which my mind was necessarily full, that I paused, balked in my advance and well nigh uncertain whether I looked upon a real thing or on some strange and terrible fantasy of my aroused imagination.

A form lay before me, outstretched on that portion of the floor which had hitherto been hidden from me by the half open door—a woman's form, which even in that first casual look impressed itself upon me as one of aerial delicacy and extreme refinement; and this form lay as only the dead lie; the dead! And I had been looking at the hearthstone for just such a picture! No, not just such a picture, for this woman lay face uppermost, and, on the floor beside her was blood—

A hand had plucked my sleeve. It was Hibbard's. Startled by my immobility and silence, he had stepped in with quaking members, expecting he hardly knew what. But no sooner did his eyes fall on the prostrate form which held me spellbound than an unforeseen change took place in him. What had unnerved me, restored him to full self possession. Death in this shape was familiar to him. He had no fear of blood. He did not show surprise at encountering it, but only at the effect it appeared to produce on me.

"Shot!" was his laconic comment as he bent over the prostrate body. "Shot through the heart! She must have died before she fell."

Shot!

That was a new experience for this room. No wound had ever before disfigured those who had fallen here, nor had any of the previous victims been found lying on any other spot than the one over which that huge settle kept guard. As these thoughts crossed my mind I instinctively glanced again toward the fireplace for what I almost refused to believe lay outstretched at my feet. When nothing more appeared there than that old seat of sinister memory, I experienced a thrill which poorly prepared me for the cry which I now heard raised by Hibbard.

"Look here! What do you make of this?"

He was pointing to what, upon closer inspection, proved to be a strip of white satin ribbon running from one of the delicate wrists of the girl before us to the handle of a pistol which had fallen not far away from her side. "It looks as if the pistol was attached to her. That is something new in my experience. What do you think it means?"

Alas, there was but one thing it could mean. The shot to which she had succumbed had been delivered by herself. This fair and delicate creature was a suicide.

But suicide in this place! How could we account for that? Had the story of this room's ill acquired fame acted hypnotically on her, or had she stumbled upon the open door in front and been glad of any refuge where her misery might find a solitary termination? Closely scanning her upturned face, I sought an answer to this question, and while thus seeking received a fresh shock which I did not hesitate to communicate to my now none too sensitive companion.

"Look at these features," I cried. "I seem to know them. Do you?"

He growled out a dissent, but stooped at my bidding and gave the pitiful young face a prolonged stare. When he looked up again it was with a puzzled contraction of his eyebrows.

"I've certainly seen it somewhere," he hesitatingly admitted, edging slowly away toward the door. "Perhaps in the papers. Isn't she like"—

"Like!" I interrupted. "It is Veronica Moore herself, the owner of this house and she who was married here two weeks since to Mr. Jeffrey. Evidently her reason was unseated by the tragedy which threw so deep a gloom over her wedding."

CHAPTER III.

NOT for an instant did I doubt the correctness of this identification. All the pictures I had seen of this well known society belle had been marked by an individuality of expression which fixed her face in the memory and which I now saw repeated in the lifeless features before me.

Having sent the too willing Hibbard to notify headquarters, I was on the point of making a memorandum of such details as seemed important, when my lantern suddenly went out, leaving me in total darkness.

This was far from pleasant, but the effect it produced upon my mind was not without its result; for no sooner did I find myself alone and in the unrelieved darkness of this gravelike room than I became convinced that no woman, however frenzied, would make her plunge into an unknown existence from the midst of a darkness only too suggestive of the tomb to which she was hastening. It was not in nature, not in woman's nature, at all events. Either she had committed the final act before such daylight as could filter through the shutters of this closed up room had quite disappeared—a hypothesis instantly destroyed by the warmth which still lingered in certain portions of her body—or else the fight which had been burning when she pulled the fatal trigger had since been carried elsewhere or extinguished.

Recalling the uncertain gleams which we had seen flashing from one of the upper windows, I was inclined to give some credence to the former theory, but was disposed to be fair to both. So after relighting my lamp I turned on one of the gas cocks of the massive chandelier over my head and applied a match. The result was just what I anticipated; no gas in the pipes. A meter had not been put in for the wedding. This the papers had repeatedly stated in dwelling upon the garish effect of the daylight on the elaborate costumes worn by the ladies. Candles had not even been provided—ah, candles! What, then, was it that I saw glittering on a small table at the other end of the room? Surely a candlestick, or, rather, an old fashioned candelabrum with a half burned candle in one of its sockets. Hastily crossing to it, I felt of the candle wick. It was quite stiff and hard. But not considering this a satisfactory proof that it had not been lately burning—the tip of the wick soon dries after the flame is blown out—I took out my penknife and attacked the wick at what might be called its root; whereupon I found that where the threads had been protected by the wax they were comparatively soft and penetrable.

The conclusion was obvious. True to my instinct in this matter, the woman had not lifted her weapon in darkness; this candle had been burning. But here my thoughts received a fresh shock. If burning, then by whom had it since been blown out? Not by her; her wound was too fatally sure for that. The steps taken between the table where the candelabrum stood and the place where she lay were taken, if taken at all by her, before that shot was fired. Some one else—some one whose breath still lingered in the air about me—had extinguished this candle flame after she fell, and the death I looked down upon was not a suicide, but a murder!

The excitement which this discovery caused to tingle through my every nerve had its birth in the ambitious feeling referred to in the opening paragraph of this narrative. I believed that my long sought for opportunity had come; that with the start given me by the conviction just stated I should be enabled to collect such clews and establish such facts as would lead to the acceptance of this new theory instead of the apparent one of suicide embraced by Hibbard and about to be promulgated at police headquarters. If so, what a triumph would be mine and what a debt I should owe to the crabbed old gentleman whose seemingly fantastic fears had first drawn me to this place!

Realizing the value of the opportunity afforded me by the few minutes I was likely to spend alone on this scene of crime, I proceeded to my task with that directness and method which I had always promised myself should characterize my first success in detective work.

First, then, for another look at the fair young victim herself! What a line of misery on the brow! What dark hollows disfiguring cheeks otherwise as delicate as the petals of a rose! An interesting if not absolutely beautiful face, it told me something I could hardly put into words; so that it was like leaving a fascinating but unsolved mystery when I finally turned from it to study the hands, each of which presented a separate problem. That offered by the right wrist you already know—the long white ribbon connecting it with the discharged pistol.

But the secret concealed by the left, while less startling, was perhaps fully as significant. All the rings were gone, even the wedding ring which had been placed there such a short time before. Had she been robbed? There were no signs of violence visible nor even such disturbances as usually follow despoliation by a criminal's hand. The boa of delicate black net which encircled her neck rose fresh and intact to her chin; nor did the heavy folds of her rich broadcloth gown betray that any disturbance had taken place in her figure after its fall. If a jewel had flashed at her throat, or earrings adorned her ears, they had been removed by a careful, if not a loving, hand. But I was rather inclined to think that she had entered upon the scene of her death without ornaments,—such severe simplicity marked her whole attire.

The great settle in the room of death

Her hat, which was as plain and also as elegant as the rest of her clothing, lay near her on the floor. It had been taken off and thrown down, manifestly by an impatient hand. That this hand was her own was evident from a small but very significant fact. The pin which had held it to her hair had been thrust again into the hat. No hand but hers would have taken this precaution. A man would have flung it aside just as he would have flung the hat.

Question:

Did this argue a natural expectation on her part of resuming her hat, or was the action the result of an unconscious habit?

Having thus noted all that was possible concerning her without infringing on the rights of the coroner, I next proceeded to cast about for clews to the identity of the person whom I considered responsible for the extinguished candle. But here a great disappointment awaited me. I could find nothing expressive of a second person's presence save a pile of cigar ashes scattered near the legs of a common kitchen chair which stood face to face with the bookshelves in that part of the room where the candelabrum rested on a small table. But these ashes looked old, nor could I detect any evidence of tobacco smoke in the general mustiness pervading the place. Was the man who died here a fortnight since accountable for these ashes? If so, his unfinished cigar must be within sight. Should I search for it? No, for this would take me to the hearth and that was quite too deadly a place to be heedlessly approached.

Besides, I was not yet finished with the spot where I then stood. If I could gather nothing satisfactory from the ashes, perhaps I could from the chair or the shelves before which it had been placed. Some one with an interest in books had sat there; some one who expected to spend sufficient time over these old tomes to feel the need of a chair. Had this interest been a general one, or had it centered in a particular volume? I ran my eye over the shelves within reach, possibly with an idea of settling this question, and though my knowledge of books is limited I could see that these were what one might call rarities. Some of them contained specimens of black letter, all moldy and smothered in dust; in others I saw dates of publication which placed them among volumes dear to a collector's heart. But none of them, so far as I could see, gave any evidence of having been lately handled; and, anxious to waste no time on puerile details, I hastily quitted my chair and was proceeding to turn my attention elsewhere when I noticed on an upper shelf a book projecting slightly beyond the others. Instantly my foot was on the chair and the book in my hand. Did I find it of interest? Yes, but not on account of its contents, for they were pure Greek to me, but because it lacked the dust on its upper edge which had marked every other volume I had handled. This, then, was what had attracted the unknown to these shelves, this—let me see if I can remember its title—"Disquisition Upon Old Coast Lines." Pshaw! I was wasting my time. What had such a dry compendium as this to do with the body lying in its blood a few steps behind me, or with the hand which had put out the candle upon this dreadful deed? Nothing. I replaced the book, but not so hastily as to push it one inch beyond the position in which I found it. For, if it had a tale to tell, then was it my business to leave that tale to be read by those who understood books better than I did.

My next move was toward the little table holding the candelabrum with the glittering pendants. This table was one of a nest standing against a nearby wall. Investigation proved that it had been lifted from the others and brought to its present position within a very short space of time, for the dust lying thick on its top was almost entirely lacking from the one which had been nested under it. Neither had the candelabrum been standing there long, dust being found under as well as around it. Had her hand brought it there? Hardly, if it came from the top of the mantel toward which I now turned in my course of investigation.

I have already mentioned this mantel more than once. This I could hardly avoid, since in and about it lay the heart of the mystery for which the room was remarkable. But, though I have thus freely spoken of it and though it was not absent from my thoughts for a moment, I had not ventured to approach it beyond a certain safe radius. Now in looking to see if I might not lessen this radius I experienced that sudden and overwhelming interest in its every feature which attaches to all objects peculiarly associated with danger.

I even took a step toward it, holding up my lamp so that a stray ray struck the faded surface of an old engraving hanging over the fireplace. It was the well known one, in Washington at least, of Benjamin Franklin at the court of France, interesting, no doubt, in a general way, but scarcely calculated to hold the eye at so critical an instant. Neither did the shelf below call for more than momentary attention, for it was absolutely bare. So was the time worn, if not blood stained, hearth, save for the impenetrable shadow cast over it by the huge bulk of the great settle standing at its edge.

I have already described the impression made on me at my first entrance by this ancient and characteristic article of furniture.

It was intensified now as my eye ran over the clumsy carving which added to the discomfort of its high, straight back and as I smelled the smell of its moldy and possibly mouse haunted cushions. A crawling sense of dread took the place of my first instinctive repugnance, not because superstition had as yet laid its grip upon me, although the place, the hour and the near and veritable presence of death were enough to rouse the imagination past the bounds of the actual, but because of a discovery I had made—a discovery which emphasized the tradition that all who had been found dead under the mantel had fallen as if from the end of this monstrous and patriarchal bench. Do you ask what this discovery was? It can be told in a word. This one end and only this end had been made comfortable for the sitter. For a space scarcely wide enough for one the seat and back at this special point had been upholstered with leather, fastened to the wood with heavy wrought nails. The remaining portion stretched out bare, hard and inexpressibly forbidding to one who sought ease there or even a moment of casual rest.

The natural inference was that the owner of this quaint piece of furniture had been a very selfish man who thought only of his own comfort. But might he not have had some other reason for his apparent niggardliness? As I asked myself this question and noted how the long and embracing arm which guarded this cushioned retreat was flattened on top for the convenient holding of decanter and glass, feelings to which I can give no name and which I had fondly believed myself proof against began to take the place of judgment and reason. Before I realized the nature of my own impulse or to what it was driving me I found myself moving slowly and steadily toward this formidable seat under an irresistible desire to fling myself down upon these old cushions and—

But here the creaking of some faroff shutter, possibly the one I had seen swaying from the opposite side of the street, recalled me to the duties of the hour, and, remembering that my investigations were but half completed and that I might be interrupted any moment by detectives from headquarters, I broke from the accursed charm, which horrified me the moment I escaped it, and, quitting the room by a door at the farther end, sought to find in some of the adjacent rooms the definite traces I had failed to discover on this the actual scene of the crime.

It was a dismal search, revealing at every turn the almost maddened haste with which the house had been abandoned. I passed out into the kitchen and so on by a close and narrow passage to the negro quarters clustered in the rear. Here I made a discovery. One of the windows in this long disused portion of the house was not only unlocked, but partly open. But, as I came upon no marks showing that this outlet had been used by the escaping murderer, I made my way back to the front of the house and thus to the stairs communicating with the upper floor.

It was on the rug lying at the foot of these stairs that I came upon the first of a dozen or more burned matches which lay in a distinct trail up the staircase and along the floors of the upper halls. As these matches were all burned as short as fingers could hold them, it was evident that they had been used to light the steps of some one seeking refuge above, possibly in the very room where we had seen the light which had first drawn us to this house. How then? Should I proceed, or await the coming of the "boys" before pushing in upon a possible murderer? I decided to proceed, fascinated, I think, by the nicety of the trail which lay before me.

But when after a careful following in the steps of him who had so lately preceded me I came upon a tightly closed door at the end of a side passage, I gave a slight push to the door and, on seeing a crack of light leap into life along the jamb, pushed the door wider and wider till the whole room stood revealed.

The instantaneous banging of a shutter in one of its windows proved the room to be the very one which we had seen lighted from below. Otherwise all was still, nor was I able to detect in my first hurried glance any other token of human presence than a candle sputtering in its own grease at the bottom of a tumbler placed on one corner of an old fashioned dressing table. This, the one touch of incongruity in a room otherwise rich if not stately in its appointments, was loud in its suggestion of some hidden presence given to expedients and reckless of consequences, but of this presence nothing was to be seen.

Not satisfied with this short survey, I turned my attention to my surroundings, which had many points of interest. Foremost among these was the big four poster which occupied a large space at my right. I had never seen its like in use before, and I was greatly attracted by its size and the air of mystery imparted to it by its closely drawn curtains of faded brocade.

A dressing table laden with woman's fixings and various articles of the toilet, all of an unexpected value and richness, occupied the space between the two windows, and on the floor, immediately in front of a high mahogany mantel, there lay, amid a number of empty boxes, an overturned chair. This chair and the conjectures its position awakened led me to look up at the mantel, with which it seemed to be in some way connected, and thus I became aware of a wan old drawing hanging on the wall above it. Why this picture, which was a totally uninteresting sketch of a simpering girl face, should have held my eye after the first glance I cannot say even now. It had no beauty, even of the sentimental kind, and very little if any meaning. Its lines, weak at the best, were nearly obliterated and in some places quite faded out, yet I not only paused to look at it, but in looking at it forgot myself and well nigh my errand. Yet there was no apparent reason for the spell it exerted over me.

It may seem both unnecessary and out of character for [illegible] of my calling to acknowledge these chance sensations, but only by doing so can I account for the minutes which elapsed before I summoned sufficient self possession to draw aside the closed curtains of the bed and take the quick look inside which my present doubtful position demanded. But, once I had broken the spell and taken the look just mentioned, I found my manhood return and with it my old ardor for clews. The bed held no gaping, chattering criminal, yet was it not quite empty. Something lay there, and this something, while commonplace in itself, was enough out of keeping with the place and hour to rouse my interest and awaken my conjectures. It was a lady's wrap, so rich in quality and of such a festive appearance that it was astonishing to find it lying in a neglected state in this crumbling old house. Though I know little of the cost of women's garments, I do know the value of lace, and this garment was covered with it.

Interesting as was this find, it was followed by one still more so. Nestled in the folds of the cloak lay the withered remains of what could only have been the bridal bouquet. Unsightly now and scentless, it was once a beautiful specimen of the florist's art. As I noted how the main bunch of roses and lilies was connected by long satin ribbons to the lesser clusters which hung from it I recalled with conceivable horror the use to which a similar ribbon had been put in the room below. In the shudder called up by this coincidence I forgot to speculate how a bouquet carried by the bride could have found its way back to this upstairs room when, as all accounts agree, she had fled from the parlor below without speaking or staying foot the moment she was told of the catastrophe which had taken place in the library. That her wrap should be lying here was not strange, but that the wedding bouquet—

That it really was the wedding bouquet and that this was the room in which the bride had dressed for the ceremony was apparent to the most casual observer. But it became an established fact when in my further course about the room I chanced on a handkerchief with the name Veronica embroidered in one corner.

This handkerchief had an interest apart from the name on it. It was of dainty texture and quite in keeping so far as value went with the other belongings of its fastidious owner. But it was not clean. Indeed it was strangely soiled, and this soil was of a nature I did not readily understand. A woman would doubtless have comprehended immediately the cause of the brown streaks I found on it, but it took me several minutes to realize that this bit of cambric, delicate as a cobweb, had been used to remove dust. To remove dust! Dust from what? From the mantelshelf probably, upon one end of which I found it. But no! One look along the polished boards

BEEF STRIKE SETTLED.

Packers and Their Employees Came to an Understanding.

CHICAGO, July 21.—The strike of packing house employes begun nine days ago, and which has demoralized the packing industry throughout the country, was settled here Wednesday night at a conference between representatives of the packers, the officials of the meat cutters union and representatives of all the allied trades employed at the stock yards. The whole controversy will be submitted to a board of arbitrators, both sides agreeing to a abide by what the decision is. Pending the decision of the arbitration board the men will be taken back to work as rapidly as possible by the packers, and it is agreed by the packers that all the old employes are to be reinstated within forty-five days from the date work is resumed.

If any of the former employes are still unemployed at the expiration of that time such persons are to have the privilege of submitting their cases to the arbitration board for settlement.

The strikers will return to work as soon as they can be notified of the peaceable adjustment of the trouble, and it is expected that by Friday morning everything will be in normal shape at all the plants in the different cities where the employes were on strike. Half an hour after the decision had been reached Wednesday night to arbitrate M. J. Donnelly, the strike leader, had secured communication by long distance telephone with the leaders of the strikers in outside cities and had notified them that a satisfactory settlement had been reached and directed the strikers to return to work as soon as possible.

The settlement of the difficulty by arbitration was brought about by the allied craft at the stock yards, who would have become involved in the controversy had it continued much longer. The representatives of these unions, which represent about 14,000 men, got together Tuesday and sent a final appeal to the packers asking for a three-sided conference Wednesday between the packers, the strikers and themselves, in a final effort to get both sides of the controversy together again and arrange some sort of agreement which would prevent the strike spreading to the affiliated unions. This appeal of the allied trades unions received a favorable response from the packers and Wednesday's conference was the result.

GO TO WORK TODAY.

KANSAS CITY, July 21.—C. W. Armour, of the Armour Packing company, Wednesday received a telegram from Chicago informing him that the strike had been settled and that the strikers had been ordered to report for work Friday morning. Mr. Armour refused to discuss the subject, saying that he had not received the details of the agreement. The managers of other local packing houses refused to discuss the settlement because they are not familiar with the terms of the settlement.

At the headquarters of the strikers the news that the packers and strikers had reached an agreement in Chicago was received with much satisfaction. The fact that the strikers are to be reinstated was especially pleasing to the strikers here. Labor leaders said that the strikers here would report for duty

Reduced Rates to Toronto.

On account of the Friend's General Conference to be held at Toronto, Ont., August 10 to 19, the Pennsylvania Railroad Company will sell round-trip tickets to Toronto and return from all stations on its lines, on August 9, 10, and 11, at reduced rates. Tickets will be good to return until August 31, inclusive.

No False Claims.

The proprietors of Foley's Honey and Tar do not advertise this as a "sure cure for consumption." They do not claim it will cure this dread complaint in advanced cases, but do positively assert that it will cure in the earlier stage and never fails to give comfort and relief in the worst cases. Foley's Honey and Tar is without doubt the greatest throat and lung remedy. Refuse substitutes. C. M. Parrish.

Bright OutLook For Pennsylvania Crops.

A change in conditions of the weather during the last week has been responsible for a bright crop outlook for Pennsylvania, according to the weekly bulletin issued by Section Director Townsend, of the Climate and Crop Service.

The week ending July 12 saw a large acreage of grain damaged because of the heavy rains, but within the last seven days there has been a deficiency in precipitations, except in the west and northwest sections of the state, which condition caused a general picking up of grain crops.

The mean temperature during the week was seasonable in the southeastern counties, but slightly below normal in other sections.

Potatoes show the best progress of all crops, and every indication points toward a plentiful supply of excellent quality. Early corn is maturing, but the late plantings, damaged by the showers, are uneven and weedy.

Tobacco plants are small but thrifty, and fruits are in good condition and growing rapidly. Oats are doing well and almost ready to harvest.

In the northwestern section of the state farmers still complain of too much rain. Erie county reports the ground too wet to cultivate. McKean also has suffered from the wet weather.

These conditions, however, are much improved in the east and southeast, where the best harvest weather has prevailed.

An Old Soldier Supposed to be Drowned.

The mysterious disappearance and probable drowning of J. B. Kearns in Penns Creek, near Pardee, has caused great excitment in that section, and the search still continues with the hope that the mystery can be unraveled.

Kearns is an old soldier about seventy-one years of age. He received a pension of over $20 per month. He was greatly interested in religious work, and frequently was found in the pulpit expounding doctrines. Last Tuesday as was his custom for some weeks, he got up about four o'clock in the morning, and went to Penns Creek to lift some lines he had left in the creek over night. On these trips he seldom remained away any length of time, and was expected home for breakfast about six o'clock. When he did not return on time Mrs. Kearns sent one of the young children for the father. He could not be found. About nine o'clock becoming alarmed at his continued absence Mrs. Kearns notified several of the neighbors and a search was begun.

About six hundred yards from Pardee Kearns' hat and fishing tackle was found on the bank of the creek. The water is quite deep at this point. The edge of the bank showed signs of a struggle, as though one had fallen into the water and endeavored to crawl out, it was supposed Kearns fell into the stream and being unable to swim, was drowned. Rakes and poles were secured and the stream thoroughly dragged and searched, but up to Thursday noon, no trace of the body could be found, Penns Creek below this hold in the stream is quite shallow and it would be impossible for the body of the man to float down the stream without being recovered.

Kearns weighed about two hundred pounds. He was a native of Millheim, where he has a brother living. He has a young wife and several children. The family has lived in Fordia and recently came north to live at Pardee.

Carried the Dynamite Home.

Boys bathing in the river below the dam during the past few days discovered a number of boxes and cans at the bottom of the stream and prompted by curiosity, pulled several of the boxes ashore and opened them. They were found to contain sticks of dynamite. Several of the boys took some of the sticks to their homes where consternation ensued. Chief Lannen was notified of the dangerous find and an investigation shows that one of the local hardware firms finding a quantity of dynamite and powder worthless dumped the same in the river feeling that that was the best place for it. There were five boxes of the explosive making a total of 250 sticks and two kegs of powder.—Lock Haven Democrat.

An Automobile Party.

A party of newspaper men traveling under the auspices of the Automobile Club of America were guests over Tuesday night at the Bush House. The party composed of Percy F. Megargel, W. F. Harrison and Ralph M. Megargel left New York city on May 28th enroute to St. Louis and now are on their way back to the metropolis. The object of their trip is to lay out a road and make a map of it for the benefit of future touring parties. They are traveling in the automobile "Pathfinder" made by the Elmore Mfg. Company of Clyde, Ohio, and will reach New York on Tuesday night. Their trip has been an unusually successful one and they have had a very few punctures to their tires. They met with considerable bad weather however it raining 23 out of 25 days.

—Miss Anna McCoy gave a porch party on Tuesday evening at the residence of her father, Frank McCoy on West Linn street. Choice refreshments were served and dancing was indulged in. The music was furnished by Christy Smith's orchestra.

CHEERFUL WOMEN.

How to Keep Happy.

DESPONDENCY is a thing of evil origin and evil results. Worry produces nothing but wrinkles and wretchedness. Let the reader put up a little note on her bureau, on her desk, and at the head of her bed, just two words, DON'T WORRY. Worry is the greatest foe to the happiness of any household. An anxious, despondent face, a fretful, complaining voice, will make every one uncomfortable.

A woman's nerves are more truly the cause of worry than outside troubles. The nerves are to a woman's body the telegraph system, which surely warns her of any trouble in the feminine make-up.

WHY WOMEN HAVE 'NERVES.'

"That is the reason why women have 'nerves.' When our thoughts begin to grow cloudy and uncertain, our impulses lag and the warnings of pain and distress are sent like flying messages throughout our limbs and frame, we straightway, nine times in ten, lay the cause of the trouble to some defect in the point where we first feel it. Is it a headache, a backache, a sensation of irritability or twitching and uncontrollable nervousness, something must be wrong with the head or back, a woman naturally says, but all the time the real trouble very often centers in the womanly organs. In nine cases out of ten the seat of the difficulty is here, and these organs should take rational treatment for its cure. The local disorder and inflammation of the delicate special organs of the sex should be treated steadily and systematically."

Dr. Pierce, during a long period of practice, found that a prescription made up entirely of roots and herbs, without the use of alcohol, cured over ninety per cent. of such cases. After using this remedy for many years in his private practice he put it up in a form that would make it easily procurable, and it can be had at any store where medicines are handled.

$500 REWARD FOR WOMEN WHO CANNOT BE CURED.

Backed up by over a third of a century of remarkable and uniform cures, a record such as no other remedy for the diseases and weaknesses peculiar to women ever attained, the proprietors and makers of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription now feel fully warranted in offering to pay $500 in legal money of the United States, for any case of Leucorrhea, Female Weakness, Prolapsus, or Falling of Womb which they cannot cure. All they ask is a fair and reasonable trial of their means of cure.

They have the most remarkable record of cures made by this world-famed remedy ever placed to the credit of any preparation especially designed for the cure of woman's peculiar ailments.

Sick women, especially those suffering from diseases of long standing, are invited to consult Dr. Pierce by letter, free. All correspondence is held as strictly private and sacredly confidential. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

"I write these few lines to let you know that I am using your 'Favorite Prescription,' and the good it has done me," says Mrs. Timothy Bourgeois, of Tobique Narrows, New Bruns. "I was troubled with headache and stomach trouble, also other female weakness. Having read a great deal about your cures I concluded to try the medicine, so my husband purchased a bottle of 'Favorite Prescription.' I was no time taking it before I felt better. Cannot thank you enough for the good it has done me. I hope others may be benefited by its use as I have been."

"I can strongly recommend Dr. Pierce's medicines, especially the 'Favorite Prescription' and 'Golden Medical Discovery,' writes Mrs. Clara Gardner, of Rainey, Mo. "I suffered from nervous debility, brought on by hard work and trouble. Had suffered several years; was growing weaker gradually, not only in body but in mind also. I began taking your medicine last spring. Commenced to improve from the start, and by the time I had taken twelve bottles, six of the 'Favorite Prescription' and six of the 'Golden Medical Discovery,' felt that I was well enough to get along without medicine. Was like a different woman and would not have been in the condition I was before taking the medicines, for a hundred dollars. Am well and hearty now, and if I ever need medicine again, will certainly take Dr. Pierce's."

EDITORIAL.

THE REPUBLICAN PLATFORM IS ALL RIGHT.

The national Republican platform adopted at Chicago by a unanimous vote is a platform upon which all Republicans can unite and march to victory. It stands for every doctrine of Republicanism. It stands for Protection without apology and without criticism. It stands for everything that has been achieved by the McKinley and Roosevelt administrations. The time for the discussion of matters pertaining to the platform has gone by and it now remains for all Republicans to rally under the standard borne by Roosevelt and Fairbanks and to assist in winning a great Republican victory. The majority of the Republicans of Pennsylvania—in fact, all of the Republicans of Centre County—are satisfied with the platform. The "Republican" is delighted with it, to use one of President Roosevelt's words. It covers all issues of the campaign and as a literary production it could not be excelled. Its literary excellence was anticipated when it was known that it was to be written by Senator Henry Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts, a man noted in literature, as well as in politics. Soon the campaign will be in progress. Soon the Democratic party will be making its fight against Protection and Republicans will be demonstrating its benefits. Republicans are always enthusiastic in a campaign in which the issue of Protection to American industry and American labor is given a prominent place. While Democrats are expounding the specious vagaries of Free-Trade or a system of low Tariffs which do not Protect, Republicans will be telling the story of industrial development which under Protection has not only been the marvel of our own people, but has elicited the glowing encomiums of the Old World. While Democrats are making promises of the wonderful things their party will do if given a chance, Republicans will take delight in reading excerpts from the history of the last Grover Cleveland administration, when, under a programme of Tariff ripping and revolutionary economic reform, banks closed their doors, factory wheels ceased to turn and headquarters of the Associated Charities became the chief centers of public activity. In unnumbered ways will the truth be made plain to the voting masses that "a Democratic Tariff has always been followed by business reverses; a Republican Tariff by business prosperity." Upon the truth of that utterance the Republican party is ready and eager to meet the opposition.

It is a platform which is courageous in tone, felicitous in construction and admirably meets the demands of the hour; it is one upon which every voter in Centre county, of whatever shade of politics he may be, can safely stand, without fear of assisting a cause, that if successful will create such a want of confidence as to bring about the disastrous state of affairs that existed at the close of the last Cleveland Administration; when the honest laboring man, was driven to idleness that forced him almost to the point of starvation.

RAINBOW CHASERS.

The confident people who talk about the possibility of Parker's election do not see very far beneath the surface of the political sea of trouble. They are rainbow chasers.

The Democratic party is worse disorganized and divided today than it ever was. Those who fondly dream of victory base their hopes upon the allegation that Wall street is for Parker and against Roosevelt. If this were literally true it would forever dam and defeat Parker; but it is not true, at least it is true only in a limited sense. There are some Wall street Democrats, men of wealth, too, who are for Parker because he is a Sound Money man. Those same people opposed Bryan for the reason that he was a financial anarchist.

Parker will have the support of the Gold Democrats and of the political eunechs who vote the Democratic ticket regardless of men or principles, just as Bryan had their support together with the support of the conscientious Free Silver Democrats in 1896 and 1900. It is conceded that the Free Silver lunatics far out numbers the "sane" members of Democratic party, so that Parker's chances are even worse than Bryan's ever were.

And Bryan and the Bryanites are not sorry.

In nominating Parker for President Mr. Littleton said: "If you ask me why he has been [illegible] answer because he has not attempted to be the master of his party, but is content to be its servant." Within the next twenty-four hours Parker played the party dictator, but not until he had been nominated.

The Republic says that when the time arrived to speak Parker's 'message came like a 13-inch projectile, the impact of which startled the world into the realization that here was a man." Yes, a man who was silent until he obtained the nomination. By the way, was the 13-inch ammunition chosen for luck?

Grove Meeting.

Quite an interesting Grove meeting is in progress in Jere Lutz's woods near Red Bank about two and one-half miles from Bellefonte, under the auspices of the United Evangelical church. Services will be held every evening during the week, on Saturday and Sunday the services will be as follows:

Saturday 10:30 a. m., 2:30 and 8 p. m.
Sunday 9 and 10:30 a. m., 1:30, 2:30 and 7 p. m.

Rev. W. B. Cox, of Bellefonte; Rev. W. N Fulcomer, of Bellwood; Rev. W. K. Shultz, of Milesburg; Rev. Melroy, of Pleasant Gap; Rev. J. M. Price, of Clintondale, and Rev. James Sbook, of Albright College, will assist the pastor Rev. D. A. Artman. There will be nothing sold on the grounds during the meeting, so everybody will please provide their own lunch if they come to spend the day.

The service at 1:30 on Sunday is for the children. The services at 2:30 on Saturday will be addresses to the Sunday schools.

—This story is a little "fishy." "Three years ago the home of John Biddie, of Morristown, N. J., was robbed of a lot of jewelry, included a gold watch belonging to Mrs. Biddie. Later when the burglar was captured he said he had thrown the plunder into Bad's lake. For the first time in her life Mrs. Biddie went fishing the other day in the lake, and her only catch was a 12 pound pickerel. When the fish was cleaned the missing watch was found in its stomach.

WASHINGTON LETTER

(From Our Regular Correspondent.)

Washington, D. C., July, 25, 1904.

The return to town next week of the President to keep bachelor's hall for three weeks in the renovated White House, will give additional life to the city, fill up the hotels, and set the political cauldron to bubbling. Everything is coming his way. Advices from the different states were factional differences existed in rezard to state matters, show that there is no falling out over the Presidential candidate. The letter of Mr. Oscar S. Straus announcing that he had abandoned the Democratic party, and "will make it a privilege no less then a duty to dedicate my best services to your election, "came as a pleasant surprise in the mail received at Sagamore Hall. There is reason to believe that many other surprises of a similar nature will be forthcoming.

Gentlemen connected with the Executive departments are often surprised at the dispatches sent from Washington and the criticisms which they receive in the press. Quite a breeze has been created in some very respectable newspapers over the announcement that the Government will not allow the wreck of the Maine, in the harbor of Havana, to be raised and removed, even after the contractor has paid the Cuban government for the privilege. Letters have been received at the Navy department asking if this can be true. Why the public should take such an interest in a mass of twisted and rusted, worthless iron is hard to understand. There are those who contend that the Maine has been abandoned by the United States and that it now belongs to Cuba and therefore the President has no right to interfere in the matter of its removal. Your correspondent called recently upon Judge Advocate Darling, of the Navy, to get the Governments opinion of the matter, the question having been refered to him for an opinion. He very frankly said that in reply to an inquiry from the contractor he gave it as his opinion that "the wreck still belongs to the Government and before it can be disposed of it will be necessary for Congress to take action." This opinion is not a command, and the contractor can go on with his work if he thinks best. It will probably be a long time before Congress will consent to have the wreck raised.

It is surprising how many of the present Cabinet officers are Eastern men, either by birth or extraction. Postmaster General Payne is originally from Ashland Mass., Secretary Shaw is from Stowe Vt., Secretary Morton's father was from Clinton, New York; Secretary Metcalf was born on Utica, New York, and educated in Connecticut. Secretary Moody is from Boston. New England manages to hold her own in the high places of the Government, for her sons are scattered all over the northwest, and they are the sturdy offspring of emmigrants. Naturally they inherit stirling qualities and find, by selection of the fittest, the places they now fill. The next Vice President Senator Fairbanks, comes of an old Mass., family which settled in the town of Dedham, and later founded the town of Lancaster. John Hayappears to be the only truly western man. Secretary Hitchcock is the only one who represents the South his father was a Mobile man.

The strike malady has broken out in a mild form in this city. Because a non union colored bricklayer was employed upon the new $700,000 war college in the southern part of the city, twenty-four union bricklayers threw down their trowels, and marched out of the arsenal grounds. This is the size of it. It is the closed shop question again on a small scale, but even if the American Federation of Labor is behind the strike, as has been alleged, it is not believed that the matter will assume any importance. The strikers say that "the right to work for whom we please will be strictly maintained". It has not been denied. The second strike consists of a few firemen at a brewery going out because the brewers refuse to advance the price of beer to $2 per barrel. Now that the beef strike has been settled much credit is said to be due to Secretary Morton of the Navy, who was in Chicago at the time. He has a brother who is largely interested in the company which was on strike, and he used his influence to bring about a compromise. Otherwise the public outcry might have compelled the President to adopt drastic measures.

Thus far the political campaign is very silent, but the real opening gun will be fired next Wednesday, at Oyster Bay, by the President. Mr. Cortelyou says he does not wish to discuss the political situation until after the formal notification. Senator Scott of W. Va., takes that state out of the doubtful column.

Hon. A. E. Patton For Governor.

The mention of the name of Senator A. E. Patton is connection with the Republican gubernatorial nomination strikes a responsive chord in the breasts of a great host of people throughout this section of the State. The Senator has a clean record, is very close to the hearts of the people, and a man who would most creditably fill the position in question. The Republicans will do the right thing in making him their choice for Governor in the coming contest.

The B. A. A. Base Ball Team Went up in a Baloon.

Perhaps four hundred people witnessed tha game of base ball on Wednesday afternoon at the Meadow Brook Park between the Bellefonte Athletic Association and the State College town team. Out of these four hundred about twenty-five paid to see the game good way for a base ball team to defray their expense.

Well, it may have been worth a quarter and then a quarter spent on a game like that might have been regretted, for a lot of school boys could have put up a better game than the B. A. A.' as it was certainly on the "Grunt." If Dock Keichline and Tom Pierpont had of had the right kind of support our boys would have made a better showing, but such fanning of wind and errors were never supposed to be made on that old base ball field as was made on Wednesday.

It is hard to say what was the matter with the Bellefonte aggregation but for some reason they seemed dazed and played out of harmony. The only run made during the entire nine innings was made by Dutch Otto who was lucky enough to be on second base when George Furey sent one out in right field which brought Otto home amid wonderful cheers, for it saved the boys from being shut out altogether.

Tom Pierpont is here visiting from Philadelphia and he caught for B. A. A. He and Dook played the whole game for our boys. Although every-one of them have a good many errors to their credit. Dutch Otto missed a couple dandy balls on the in field and kicked them around like a foot ball McGarvey, Montgomery and Crider failed to make proper connections with some out on the field. We must say Montgomery did hang on to some pretty ones. Furey tried to get next to some but his hands were too soft.

"Pickle Gillen, States good runner, and all around player, was all to the good and played a most excellent game.

"Curley" Stevens in center field was right there when the ball came near him and you did'nt see him leave any go by either.

"Lengthy Snyder played a real good game and stood on 1st base like a stone wall and if a ball would go five feet above his head he hung to it.

"Sweet" Candy made three pretty runs and his assists were all that could be desired.

The next time the College boys play it is their desire to play ball and not practice.

Pleasant Family Reunion.

The pleasant home of Mr. and Mrs. M A Elder, on East Spruce street, Philipsburg, has been an unsually happy one the past couple of days the result of a family reunion that has been taking place. George S. Gray, Stormstown. Sunday reached another milestone in the journey of life, and it had been arranged that he and his children should gather at the Elder home in honor of the event. The arrangements all worked out nicely, and Mr. Gray had the pleasure of once more having around him at one time the following children: Mrs. M. A. Elder, with her family; Mrs. Rev. J. A. Mattern, and her daughter and son, Isabella and Eugene, of Clearfield; Mrs. Rev. W. K. Foster, with her son, Herbert, of Watsontown, and Miss Annie L. Gray, of Stormstown. Mr G's brother, Miles G. Gray, and his wife, of Florida, were also present, and it was an occasion of great joy to all.

Pittsburg Dispatch Souvenir Number.

The souvenir issue of the Pittsburg Dispatch Sunday July 17 on the Worlds Fair emphasizes the utilitarian side of a trip to St. Louis, what can be seen there, the extent of the show and its cost, and how much it would cost to make a short stay there. It is an epitone of all the literature that has been compiled regarding the several features of the Fair and a credit to the Dispatch Publishing Company. The Dispatch is the leading paper in Pittsburg. Its influence is great because it is pre eminently a Home Journal of honest aims and clean purposes. Its Policy is of absolute independence in all things. It stands for the right. Its pages Daily and Sunday abound with interest. Its Editorial page is a model for other papers both home and abroad.

—J. Wells Evans, of Spring Mills, died while on a visit to relatives in Ohio and his remains were forward home for burial. The funeral will take place this morning at 9:30 o'clock at Spring Mills.

Explosion of Molten Metal.

An explosion of metal at the foundry of the Darling Pump and Manufacturing company, at Williamsport, at 5 20 o'clock Wednesday July 20, wr ught havoc among the workmen, who were spattered with the contents of a 200 pound ladle of molten metal and seven of whom were terribly burned.

The seven seriously injured are: Otto Schlietner, Michael F. O. Connell, George Grammi, Torance S. O'Donnell, Thomas Haines, Richard O'Connell, and John H. Lauer.

The cause of accident was the cutting out of the clay lining of the ladle by the weight of the liquid metal, about 200 pounds. The men failed to see that the clay had broken until they lifted the ladle when the metal melted through the ladle and with a rush struck the ground. The ground was damp and a terrific explosion resulted.

The moulders not seriously burned were kept rushing for a few minutes tearing the clothes from their fellow workmen, and extinguishing the several blazes in the foundry. The clothes stripped off the burned men were in some instances burned in shreds and in others so full of holes they resembled sieves.

An Elopement.

An elopement at Greenbrier, Penn township, created a big excitement at that place Thursday morning July 14th.

It appears that during the night, Irvin Kerns, a son of Jacob Kerns and Almira Auman, the 15-year-old daughter of Frank Auman, had departed for parts unknown and no further trace of them could be found than that they had taken the train at Lamar, presumably en route for New York state to be married.

The father of the girl was furious and tried every means to invoke the aid of the law to stop the fugitives but without success.

The couple returned Saturday, having been married at Buffala. This was another of those cases which the

Girl said "Yes."
Pa said "No."

Held up in Oak Grove Yards.

An employe of the New York Central railroad at Oak Grove, whose name could not be learned, was held up by a highwayman in the yards at that place Sunday morning at 1 o'clock who demanded his 'coin" at the point of a revolver: Saturday was pay day and the young man had his months earning's in his pocket. While pretending to reach for his money he pulled his gun but the highwayman saw what he was up to and fired at him, the ball going through his arm. The shot was returned and it is believed the robber was hit in the leg. He managed to escape in the darkness without accomplishing his purpose, although a posse of railroad men searched for him diligently.

WAYSIDE INN.

Home for Aged and Infirm Odd Fellows Dedicated.

Grove City, Pa., July 23.—Wayside Inn, the home provided for their aged and infirm by the Odd Fellows of Pennsylvania, was dedicated Thursday, the ceremonies attracting to the town about 25,000, the largest crowd which has ever visited it. The dedicatory services were held in the afternoon with Grandmaster Robert Graham, of Philadelphia, presiding.

The impressive ritualistic services of the order were used. The president of the home association, Louis K. White, of Allegheny, delivered an address, telling how the association had been started with a treasury fund of $1. In three years' time a farm and home have been secured, costing $65,000, every cent of which is paid.

Grandmaster Graham then made an address and formally dedicated the building to the use for which it had been designed.

Mischievous Boys Fire a Stable.

Two young Flemington boys in order to have some fun, Monday placed a quantity of paper and dry grass into a cigar box and applying a match to the inflammable stuff, shoved it under the floor of the barn and ran away. Fortunately one of the family living on the premises happened to be in the barn at the time, and overheard the boys' conversation. When he got out, the floor of the stable was already burning, and he quickly put out the flames. In the stable at the time was a cow, some chickens, a quantity of hay, next winter's coal supply and some wood. Although the boys are known, no arrests will be made.—Lock Haven Democrat.

One Minute Cough Cure

Green's Pharmacy.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

WOMAN'S WORLD

MISS CLARA GRAECEN.

The Bright Young Clerk of the Treasury Department.

There are a number of women employed in various positions of responsibility in the different departments in the national capital, but perhaps the most remarkable position held by any woman under the government is occupied by Miss Clara Graecen, who is the law clerk of the treasury at Washington. A mere girl, slight of figure, with fluffy blond hair, one would never imagine that she could be an expert writer of legal opinions for one of the executive departments. Yet such is her business, and she obtained her place purely through merit and superior ability. It pays $2,000 a year and is the only position of the kind under the government that was ever held by a woman. Miss Graecen went to Washington from Kalgaska, Mich., some eight years ago. Though still in her teens, she was a proficient stenographer and, by passing highest in a competitive examination, secured employment as a typewriter in the treasury. Before long she earned for herself the reputation of the most rapid shorthand writer in the department. Her evenings she spent in studying law, and after awhile some of the cases that came into the comptroller's office were referred to her for decision. She showed such lucidity and legal accuracy in the preparation of such papers that when, a few years ago, the place of law clerk fell vacant, it was given to Miss Graecen by Secretary Gage.

The Meat Chopper.

Have a meat chopper in your kitchen and use it freely. Anything that has to be chopped can be passed through it with good results.

By passing cheese through the machine it can be prepared for a rabbit in about one-fourth of the time required for grating it. This is especially recommended for cheese that is a trifle stale, for it comes out in fine, light flakes, with no hint of its apparent age. The machine prepared cheese is the best for sprinkling spaghetti, since it is free from the lumps which are apt to be found in cheese which has been grated or chopped in a bowl with a knife.

There was a time when vegetable soup on the day's menu meant hours of preparation and cooking. With the use of the machine in preparing the vegetables time and fuel are saved, and the result is superior in flavor and appearance to the soup made in the old laborious way. While the meat is cooking over a slow fire to extract all the juices the vegetables are pared, then placed in cold water. Each kind is chopped by itself, using the different knives for the various degrees of fineness desirable for the kind of vegetables used. Cabbage should be chopped with the coarsest knife, whether it is to be used in soup or boiled by itself and served with a cream dressing. Carrots, onions, parsnips, turnips, etc., should be chopped with the medium sized knife or the smallest of the blades, for the finer they are chopped the less time required for cooking. When the soup is made these vegetables may be strained out and used with chopped meat for vegetable hash or served in the soup itself, since the particles are sufficiently dainty to please the most fastidious.—Woman's Home Companion.

To preserve stair carpets put pads of old blankets on each step. If there is no store of ancient blankets to draw from use several thicknesses of brown paper.

In running strings through curtains that have been laundered use a safety pin instead of a bodkin, and the curtains will not tear so readily.

A piece of chamois wet in warm water is the best thing to use for wiping off mirrors and windows after sweeping.

Old flannel makes excellent polishers for silver, almost as good as chamois leather.

$500 REWARD FOR WOMEN
WHO CANNOT BE CURED.

So uniformly successful has Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription proven in all forms of Female Weakness, Prolapsus, or Falling of Womb, and Leucorrhea, that, after over a third of a century's experience in curing the worst cases of these distressing and debilitating ailments, Dr. Pierce now feels fully warranted in offering to pay $500 in cash for any case of these diseases which he cannot cure.

IT STANDS ALONE.—The "Favorite Prescription" stands alone, as the one and only remedy for these distressingly common forms of weakness, possessed of such positively specific curative properties as to warrant its makers in proposing, and binding themselves to forfeit, as we, the undersigned proprietors of that wonderful remedy hereby do, to pay the sum of $500 in legal money of the United States in any case of the above diseases in which after a fair and reasonable trial of our treatment, we fail to cure. No other medicine for the cure of woman's peculiar ailments is backed by such a remarkable guarantee; no other medicine for woman's ills is possessed of the unparalleled curative properties that would warrant its manufacturers in making such an offer; no other remedy has such a record of cures on which to base such a remarkable offer.

Therefore, insist on having Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and turn your back on any unscrupulous dealer who would insult your intelligence by attempting to foist upon you some inferior substitute, under the plea that "it is just as good." Insist on having the article which has a record of a third of a century of cures and which is backed by those willing to forfeit $500 if they cannot cure you.

In cases attended by a leucorrheal drain a solution of Dr. Pierce's Lotion Tablets should be used conjointly with the use of the "Favorite Prescription." They are sold by all druggists, or sent post-paid to any address, on receipt of 25 cents in stamps. Send 31 cents in stamps for Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser. Address WORLD'S DISPENSARY, Buffalo, N. Y.

Weak and sick women are invited to consult Dr. Pierce, by letter, free. All correspondence is held as strictly private. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Your Summer Outing.

A duty all people owe themselves that they may live long and prosper is to take a certain amount of recreation. Brain-workers especially owe this to themselves. Their work is laborious and monotonous, and they should seek some means to have a change for a week or two at least, in some manner which is entirely different to what they see around them. The least expensive and most enjoyable we can recommend is a water trip.

The accommodations are first-class in every way and very reasonable.

THE WOMAN MINISTER.

She Has Come to Stay In the Congregational Church.

The woman minister has come to stay in Congregationalism. While other denominations, like the Methodists and Episcopalians, refuse to ordain women, the Congregational denomination, in most sections of the country at least, seems willing to approve well qualified women or to extend to them the same opportunities in the Congregational ministry that are offered to worthy and well educated men. The divinity schools of the denomination admit women to their courses, and some of them, like Hartford Theological seminary, make a specialty of the opportunities offered women.

And yet it is not likely that there will be such a pressure from the feminine side of the house into the ranks of the ministry as to crowd the men to the wall. Here and there a man of moderate ability may be set one side for a brilliant, attractive woman, but that would be his fate when he came into competition with a man possessing the same qualifications.

And at any rate, as in the case of the law and medicine, it will probably only be the occasional woman in coming years who will choose the ministry for her profession. But it seems certain that, provided they possess the desirable natural and acquired qualifications, women will be welcome in the Congregational ministry at least and find an important work to do for their fellow men and women.—Boston Transcript.

THE MONEY QUESTION.

A Hard Problem With Which Many Wives Have to Wrestle.

Perhaps the first difficulty young wives have to encounter, as well as the last that old wives have still to wrestle with, is the question of money. Most women are by nature economical. They watch outgo more carefully than men do and plan expenditures more closely. The extravagant women are usually those whose lives have not been allowed to develop naturally, who have been forced into an economic dependence and taught the joys of spending, with none of the counterbalancing difficulties of earning. But even such women have economical streaks in the midst of their lavishness—a sort of spasmodic reversion to type. In spite of this there is in most masculine minds a deep seated distrust of woman's financial ability, and the consequence is that the world is full of careful, industrious wives nagged and hindered by careless, impulsive husbands, who take to themselves the credit of the wife's savings and throw upon her the blame of their own loose methods. Few of these women like to assert themselves baldly as their husbands' financial superiors—some of them even aid him in his joyful career of self deception—and when in desperation they are driven to take the reins into their own hands it hurts them worse than it does the husbands.—Harper's Bazar.

TOILET TIPS.

It is said the towel is an enemy to a beautiful face, for it breaks the tissues.

A toothbrush should always stand so it will drain when out of use, and should be exposed to the air.

It is said that the Romans used skeins of silk after the bath instead of towels to keep the skin nice.

An ounce of clove pink petals infused in three-quarters of a pint of pure alcohol with a few verbena leaves is a refreshing odor for the bath.

This famous remedy does for the stomach that which it is unable to do for itself, even if but slightly disordered or overburdened.

Like a Comet in the sky comes the star of health to the weak and weary despondent dyspeptic, curing all stomach troubles and digestive disorders.

Kodol supplies the natural juices of digestion and does the work of the stomach, relaxing the nervous tension, while the inflamed muscles and membranes of that organ are allowed to rest and heal. It cures Indigestion, flatulence, palpitation of the heart, nervous dyspepsia and all stomach troubles by cleansing, purifying and strengthening the glands, membranes of the stomach and digestive organs.

St. PETERBURG OPTIMISTIC;

Think Malacca Incident Will Soon Cease to be a Sensation.

St. Petersburg, July 22.—The scare Wednesday over the Malacca incident has given way to a calmer and more rational view. The feeling in high official circles, where an exact knowledge of the attitude of the government exists, is that the case will be speedily and satisfactorily adjusted. The main difficulty is the excited state of public feeling in the two countries, but the Russian government, under the direct inspiration of the emperor, who is personally anxious to avoid grounds for a quarrel, is apparently ready to meet Great Britain in the most friendly spirit.

To the emperor primarily, but also in large degree to Foreign Minister Lamsdorf, is due the credit for restraining the Chauvinistic spirit of a certain element which talks lightly of the possibilities of war with Great Britain.

The Russian position can be stated in a few words. While not admitting that the Russian captain seized the Malacca without some warrant, Russia will accept without question Great Britain's assurances that the war munitions on board the vessel were government stores bound for the naval station at Hong Kong, and order the immediate release of the ship. At the same time she will maintain her right to stop vessels, believed to have contraband of war on board and detain them if the manifests are not plain as required by international law.

Whether Russia will agree to discuss the war status of the Red Sea cruisers is not plain, but if Great Britain insists seriously she may offer to refer this and other collateral question to The Hague tribunal.

It is stated that the foreign office was not consulted regarding the international question involved when the decision to send out the vessels of the volunteer fleet and convert them into warships was reached, but this cannot be confirmed. The emperor's brother-in-law, Grand Duke Alexander Mikhailovich, who is a strong reactionary and who is said to have planned the cruise, seems to be chiefly responsible for the present entanglement.

Nothing is ascertainable here regarding the pour parleurs of the powers on the general subject of neutral commerce, but that these are passing is not considered likely.

The Prinz Heinrich incident seems certain of satisfactory adjustment. There appears to be no desire on the part of Germany to crowd Russia, that country being convinced that any damage which may have been done will be righted and proper reparation will be made.

Brush Valley Fishermen Arrested.

Last Friday six citizens of Smullton and vicinity were brought before Justice of the Peace F. P. Musser, at Millheim, charged with violating the fish laws.

The charge was brought by J. W. Criswell, state deputy fish warden, who had been informed that the following persons, viz:—Elias Breon, Wesley Hackenberg, W. Hackman, Jacob Gephart, John Brungart and Samuel Gephart had fished in Penns creek on the 30th day of July, 1903, for game and other fish with scoop nets, a device not specifically allowed by act of assembly. A number of witnesses were heard for the commonwealth but none of them could identify the parties as having fished at that time.

A number of the defendants admitted that they had fishing in June 1903, but as this action had been brought after the expiration of a year from the time the offense was committed they could not be held for that violation. After hearing all the evidence the justice decided that the commonwealth had not proven its case and the defendants were discharged and the costs placed on the county as directed by law.

This was certainly a very close shave for those Brush valley fishermen and should prove a warning to all that fishing with any device not specially allowed by law is a very dangerous thing at present.

Ralph Ellingworth, Esq., appeared as attorney for the defendants.—Millheim Journal.

—During the storm on Tuesday afternoon; lightning struck the residence of Whalen David in Curtin township. It entered through the flue, broke the stove all to pieces and killed the family cat. The members of the family were all in the same room and were stunned but not seriously injured, a marvelous escape indeed.

—S. E. Kimport of State College, met with a peculiar accident recently. He was putting ice in the refrigerator of his meat shop when he felt in his foot what he thought to be rheumatism. Towards evening the pain increased, whereupon he consulted a physician who told him he had broken a bone in his foot. Mr. Kimport is now "navigating" on crutches.

Hospitality at Small Expense.

Entertainment—that is, pleasure to your guests—does not depend on the money you spend, but on your own knowledge of how to receive and extend hospitality. Christine Terhune Herrick tells you all about it. Post paid 50c. E. J. CLODE, Publisher, 156 Fifth Ave. New York.

Foley's Honey and Tar for children, safe, sure. No opiates. C. M. Parrish.

Treat Your Kidneys for Rheumatism

When you are suffering from rheumatism, the kidneys must be attended to at once so that they will eliminate the uric acid from the blood. Foley's Kidney Cure is the most effective remedy for this purpose. R. T. Hopkins, of Polar, Wis., says, "After unsuccessfully doctoring three years for rheumatism with the best doctor, I tried Foley's Kidney Cure and it cured me. I cannot speak too highly of this great medicine." C. M. Parrish.

IF WOMEN ONLY KNEW.

What a heap of happiness it would brink to Bellefonte Homes.

Hard to do housework with an aching back.

Hours of misery at leisure or at work.

If women only knew the cause.

Backache pains come from sick kidneys.

Doan's Kidney Pills will cure it.

Bellefonte people endorse this.

Mrs. J. Cowher of Bishop Street says: "I was very bad with my back and head. I suffered pain in both and was very restless nights besides being so tired all the time that I could hardly drag myself about. I was very lame across my kidneys and bending over or being on my feet much was extremely painful. Reading about Doan's Kidney Pills and seeing them so highly recommended for these troubles I procured them from F. Potts Green's drug store. They gave me positive relief, caused me to sleep well, stopped the pains, removed the lameness and invigorated me generally."

BRIEF MENTION

Short Items of Local Interest Gathered By The Way Side

—On Thursday afternoon about 3 o'clock fire broke out in the flue of Chas. Crider's house at Flemington. The fire spread rapidly Crider's house and several others were destroyed. Lock Haven and Mill Hall fire departments were called upon for assistance.

—The Reformed churches and Sunday schools of Bellefonte, Nittany valley and Lock Haven will hold a union picnic at Hecla Park Wednesday, August 3. A fine program has been arranged and a happy time is anticipated.

—Curtis Meyers of Pine Grove Mills met with a serious accident last week, while handling the harpoon hay fork. In an ungarded moment it swung around to the front cutting an ugly gash in his nose. Had he not just then turned his head it would have penetrated his skull and the wound been more serious.

—Dr. E. A. Russel, of Unionville, had a "wen" removed from his left cheek at the Bellefonte Hospital last week. The wen had been on his cheek for twenty years and periodically broke and run out, but it recently closed permanently and the Doctor concluded to have it removed which was done successfully.

—We have just received word that Mrs. J. E. Morris of this city, who is in attendance at the convention at Cannonsburg, Pa. has been re-elected a member of the executive board. This makes her third term which certainly proves her standing with the women of the convention

—A boy named John Derr, a farmer's son of Manor township, Lancaster county, the other day was driving to the barn with a lead of wheat in a severe storm, when a bolt of lightning struck a tree near, hit team, and when he attempted to urge his horses forward he found he was unable to speak. He has since only partly regain his speech.

—An Italian was shot in the leg Friday evening at Gillentown, a station on the Beech Creek railroad, and Saturday morning he was taken to the Lock Haven hospital. The shooting was accidental. A 22 calibre ball entered the man's leg above the knee. Physicians at the hospital probed for the ball but were unable to remove it.

—The new addition to the Altoona hospital is rapidly nearing completion and will be ready for occupancy in a short time though the regular opening day will be set for some time in September, when it has been entirely fitted up and furnished. The new wing is three stories high and will give the institution almost double the room for the care of the sick and injured for which it has been greatly handicapped for the past couple of years.

—Dr. Silas C. Swallow, of Harrisburg, Pa., and George W. Carroll, of Texas, Prohibition candidates for president and vice president of the United States, were formally notified of their nominations at Indianapolis on Friday. In the evening a mass meeting was held at which A. A. Stevens Esq., of Tyrone, was one of the speakers. Others who made addresses were S. H. Davis, Texas; James A. Tate, Texas; Dr. D. C. Johns, Wisconsin; Frank Sibley, Arizona; J. B. Cranfill, Texas, and Homer L. Castle, Pennsylvania.

—The Switzer family of Philipsburg were alarmed Thursday morning of last week by a telegram from Miss Ella Switzer, from Vancouver, B. C., stating that her sister, Miss Kate, was seriously ill of Bright's disease, in St Luke's hospital, in that city. A second telegram received Friday morning, said her condition was more encourging. Miss Kate was far from well before she and Miss Ella started for Atlin, but, it was hoped the change would be beneficial to the rheumatism, she was suffering from. Vancouver is about seven days travel from Philipsburg and four or five from Atlin, where O. T. Switzer is busy with the British-American Dredging company's work.

—Archie Walters, of Altoona, Saturday July 16 with horse and buggy went for huckleberries to what is known as the Williams farm a couple miles east of Lakemont. At dark he had thirty quarts then he started for home, and as he was driving carefully down a hill in the road a would-be highway robber stepped from a clump of bushes and made a grab for the horse's bridle, which frightened the animal and caused him to jump forward, his feet striking the man and knocking him into a ditch at the side of the road. It all happened in a moment, and before Mr. Walters realized fully what had happened the horse was pitching down the hill at full speed, over rocks and into ditches nearly upsetting the buggy several times. The animal was finally stopped, and an inventory revealed that sixteen quarts of the berries had been lost, but fortunately the horse was not hurt nor the buggy damaged.

—John Shadle is having his property on North Thomas street re-painted.

—The Howard Canning Company started up their canning factory Thursday. They employ 200 hands.

—The iron railing and some of the wood work about the Centre County bank is being re-painted.

—The Methodists held their annual picnic at Hecla Park Thursday and there was a large attendance.

—One of the gratifying reports from the Treasury Department for the fiscal year 1904 shows a substantial reduction in interest obligations.

—Mrs. Mitchell I. Gardner entertained a party of friends at a card party at her home on North Spring street on Thursday evening of last week.

—Fred Kurtz Sr., has so far recovered from his recent illness as to be able to be out on the street. We hope that his recovery may be rapid and permanent.

—B. H. Sharp, of West Chester, a former instructor at the Academy and quite a noted base ball player, has signed with the Cleveland league team for next year.

—C. F. Nailer, superintendent of the Baltimore Life Insurance Company, dropped dead in his office at Williamsport on Wednesday of last week. He was quite well known here.

—Dr. H. C. Holloway is expected home from Burbank, Ohio, the latter part of the week and Sunday will occupy his pulpit in the Lutheran church both morning and evening.

—Miss Minnie Cole, one of the fair young compositors in the Republican office and a teacher in the Reformed Sunday school, gave a picnic at Hecla Park Tuesday for her Sunday school class.

—Thomas S. Bigelow, of Pittsburg, one of the strongest powers in the Republican party in Pennsylvania and a life long friend of the late Senator Quay, died Wednesday evening of heart failure, due to excessive heat.

—Supt. F. H. Thomas, of the Bellefonte Central, will furnish the stone for the new wall on South Water street. It is to be quarried at some point along the Bellefonte Central road.

—Lieut. Philip F. Garbrick, of Co. B, acted as quartermaster of the detail who arranged for the 5th Regiment's quarters at Gettysburg. Corporal Harry A. Taylor and Privates Gus Wian, W. J. Derstine, H. W. Schreffler, H. C. Jodon, Howard Gregg and James F. Hazel composed the detail from Co B. who left Thursday for Gettysburg.

—The Republicans have committed themselves to a Tariff policy that has proved valuable to them as a party, and to the people of the whole country as well. It bears an important relation to the industrial peace and proeperity of the United States, and it will be sustained in this campaign, as heretofore, by the intelligent voters of the republic who are capable of realizing what is best for the general good.

—Probably the biggest show in Central Pennsylvania this year, is the celebration of the 100th anniversity of Clearfield's growth on July 26-27-28-29. Very extensive preparations were made for the event. We are informed that the celebration is to be an actual World's Fair and the cost of attractions will exceed $10,000. Clearfield is a beautiful town of 8,000 inhabitants, having 4 miles of paved streets and a beautiful park. The Executive Committee has sent out a general invitation and if any of our readers contemplate taking a few "days off" they can do no better than to go to the Clearfield Centennial.

—During an electric storm which visited Altoona and vicinity Friday the lightning played a queer prank at Eldorado A heavy bolt struck six poles of the United Telephone company, traveling along the wires from one pole to another and shattering some of them into fragments. Two of the poles were completely annihilated, being torn into splinters, which were scattered around in all directions; the tops of two others were cut into fine strips, which were doubled inward by the current, and the others were split into several pieces. The wires were badly twisted and tangled about the fragments of the poles and were partly torn from the cross-arms, some of which still hang from the tops of the splintered poles.

—The canker worms that were quite numerous last year and whose ravages this spring for a time threatened to denude fruit trees of leaves and fruit besides being in a fair way to defoliate the forests and whose sudden disappearance was probably due to the excessive rain of the season may according to H. A. Surface, State Zoologist, be expected to renew their depredations next year. Prof. Surface says that the male of the canker worm is a winged moth that flies only at night, while the female is wingless and climbs trees to deposit her eggs during the fall and early spring. He recommends that as a precautionary measure raw cotton or tarred rope be tied around fruit trees to prevent the ascent of the female. In this case an ounce of prevention is worth many pounds of cure.

THE BIG PICNIC.

Getting Things in Shape for Business Men's Day at Hecla.

The gentlemen composing the sub-committee on music of the Business Men's association, in the coming picnic Messrs. George R. Meek, Hard P. Harris, of Bellefonte, and P. P. Rittman, of Lock Haven met at the Fallon House Lock Haven on Monday. It was decided to engage the services of a band and orchestra from Bellefonte and also from Lock Haven.

John D. Sourbeck, of Bellefonte, a member of the amusement committee, was also in Lock Haven consulting with the other members of the committee in reference to the attractions for that occasion. Arrangements will likely be made for a championship game of ball to be played an the Hecla park grounds between Altoona and Williamsport besides many other varied amusements and sports.

A game of ball between picked nines from Centre and Clinton counties is also contemplated.

Off for Camp.

Company B, 5th Regiment N. G. P., left Friday morning in a special car attached to the 9:53 train enroute to Gettysburg where they will attend the division encampment of the Pennsylvania National Guard. The company was in charge of Capt. Hugh S. Taylor and Lieut. S. D. Gettig and they presented a fine appearence. 1st Lieut. Philip Garbrick accompanied the detail to Gettysburg on Thursday.

Capt. Taylors company is one of the best drilled companies in the state having an average above 98 per cent. This is a record to be proud of and we feel sure they will successfully maintain this average at the ensuing encampment.

Quite a crowd of people including brothers, sisters and sweethearts were at the station to see the boys in blue go away. They reached Gettysburg Friday afternoon and returning will reach home Saturday July 30.

—The Brockerhoff House boasts of having the finest and the highest priced line of cigars in town. We know the price is high all right, but as to the quality, well we can't tell as we don't indulge in the weed.

The Williams Family Reunion.

The fifth annual reunion of the Williams family will be held in John Q. Miles' grove, one mile east of Martha along the B. E. V. R. R., on August 27. A larger representation of this great family is expected to participate in this social event than ever before. This annual assembling of this large connection has grown to be one of the most social and pleasant as well as the largest gatherings of its kind in Central Penna. At its organization five years ago not more than one hundred people took part, last year there were nearly two thousand who participated, representing nearly a dozen counties, and not the slighest breach of good conduct occurred such as intoxication and so on that usually mar the peace of such large gatherings. This year it promises to be farther reaching larger and better than ever before. We expect many families from the far west. In fact we see new faces each year of those we have not seen for years. There will be no pains spared to make every one feel welcome, and all friends from a distance will be entertained freely, while those from our home county will be expected to bring baskets with them, as the refreshment part of the event will be of the basket picnic type. The friends of this community would gladly entertain all but it would be impossible, in view of the fact that so many will come from out of the county for whom it would be impossible to bring baskets.

Excellent music, and addresses by able and prominent speakers will form part of the entertainment for the day. All trains are expected to stop at the grounds which is a great convenience to those coming from a distance. The public is cordially invited, and we trust that each and all will contribute to the success of this social event.

The committees are: Executive committee—W. H. Williams, chairman; A. C. Williams, vice chairman; Ida R. Williams, secretary; G. G. Fink, corresponding secretary; A. Y. Williams, historian and treasurer.

Sub-Com.—Finance—W. A. Hartsock, O. D. Eberts, Abednego Williams. Music—G. G. Fink, G. A. Williams, S. T. Williams. Entertainment—J. R. Williams, J. B. Williams, W. S. Williams. Auditing—A. C. Wednesday Nights Fire.

On July 20 just at the midnight hour fire broke out in the restaurant owned by Charles Hazel and conducted by his brother in-law, Mr. Shope on Bishop street. It spread with great rapidity and only the timely arrival of the fire companies prevented a serious conflagration which would have laid in waste the thickly settled business section of the town.

The restaurant is located in the McClure building and the fire started in the rear in the cooking department. Over the restaurant was the flat occupied by George Sunday which was also badly damaged by the fire. The total loss will probably reach $1000, partially covered by insurance.

The kitchen of the restaurant was completely gutted and the floor and walls on the second floor were badly scorched.

Mrs. Elizabeth Reed, wife of Jacob Reed of Aaronsburg, died on Friday, July 15 aged 61 years and 28 days.

Just two weeks prior to the day of her death. Mrs. Reed met with an accident caused by an attack of dizziness, which resulted in the fracture of an arm and thigh and breaking of a leg. She was also afflicted with dropsy which was the immediate cause of her death.

She has left to survive her husband, and two daughters, Mrs. E. L. Stover and Mrs. George Homan, of Aaronsburg, one brother Jacob Winklebiech, of Rebersburg, and one sister, Mrs. Benjamin Kerstetter, of Penn township.

Funeral services were held the following Sunday forenoon conducted by Rev. B. R. M. Sheeder, assisted by Rev. F. E. Lauffer and Rev. John A. Bright. Interment in the Lutheran cemetery.

His finger Cut Off.

Ex-Postmaster C. W. Scott, of Williamsport, was one of the passengers on train of 8 of the Pennsylvania, when it pulled into the station at Tyrone Thursday July 14. He was getting on the train at that place and when he reached the platform and started for the coach the door of the car slammed shut catching one of the fingers of his left hand and cutting the same off as clear as if it had been cut by a knife. The trainmen picked up the piece of flesh as it fell to the floor. —Ex.
